

ELECTRONICS TECHNICIANS

Electronics Technician (ET). The electronics technician serves on all types of ships and at shore stations having electronic equipment. He or she is responsible for maintenance and repair of all shipboard electronic equipment, and other types of communication, detection, and ranging equipment employing electronic circuits. He or she uses many types of precision test equipment — such as cathode-ray oscilloscopes, frequency meters, and vacuum-tube testers.