

. . . And Westward

Just north of the island of Guam in the Western Pacific and still several days from Subic Bay, HAMILTON was diverted to investigate a Soviet trawler and a buoy she had in the water. After several hours of picture-taking and "two-sided surveillance," we again headed west leaving the "fishing trawler" and her strange catch behind.

