"Are you sure I went the wrong way?"

Our stay in Kaohsiung was punctuated by the second in the series of softball games between the Wardroom Whizzes and the Enlisted Trash (as they prefer to be called). Although some members of the Enlisted team were conspicuous by their absence, the Trashmen managed to field a team by utilizing a couple of itinerant photographers. After the traditional Ceremony of the Churchkey, Chief HALL hollered "Play Ball" and what followed would have made Abner Doubleday turn over in his grave.

After seven innings of fierce competition among the YAK's athletic titans, the score was tied up at six all. Up to this point the teams had seemed evenly matched and both sides had been playing heads-up ball. "Roscoe" SWEENEY (appearing thru the courtesy of RPI) and "Scrappy Jaguar" SUGAR (the Listerine Kid) seemed to be engaged in a tough pitchers' duel, both being backed by spectacular plays in the field. In the eighth inning, however, the Trashmen's defenses broke down and the Whizzes, sparked by an in-the-park four bagger by Ferris FAIN (former AL Batting Champ) pulled ahead by seven big ones. The Trashmen fought valiantly, but at game's end the score stood 13-6 in favor of the Wardroom nine. Thus the series was tied at 1-1, with the next game scheduled for Hong Kong.
