When it comes to the safety of our teammates, we all have the Watch.

A Sailor is at higher risk of sexual assault when a coworker does any of the following:

- Repeatedly tells sexual “jokes”
- Embarrasses, angers or upsets the Sailor by repeatedly suggesting they don’t act like their gender is supposed to
- Displays, shows or sends sexually explicit materials (e.g., pictures, video)
- Repeatedly asks questions about their sex life or sexual interests that makes them uncomfortable, angry or upset
- Repeatedly makes sexual comments about their appearance, body
- Takes or shares suggestive pictures or videos of them when they don’t want to
- Repeatedly attempts to establish unwanted romantic or sexual relationship
- Intentionally touches them in sexual way when they do not want them to
- Makes them feel they would be punished/treated unfairly for not doing a sexual act

A Sailor is at higher risk of sexual assault, if a Sailor’s career is hurt as coworkers:

- Mistreat, ignore, exclude, or insult them because of their gender

A Sailor is at higher risk of sexual assault, when the Sailor’s unit:

- Does not make it clear that sexual assault has no place in the military
- Does not promote a unit climate based on mutual respect and trust
- Does not lead by example by refraining from sexist comments and behaviors
- Does not recognize and immediately correct incidents of sexual harassment
- Does not encourage bystander intervention to assist others in situations at risk for sexual assault or other harmful behaviors
- Leaders did not publicize sexual assault report resources
- Sailors did not encourage victims to report sexual assault

A Sailor is at higher risk of sexual assault, when the Sailor’s unit is:

- Low in unit cohesion
- Low in respect from or for Chain of Command
- Low in respect for others from diverse backgrounds
- Low in ability to deal effectively with adversity or conflict when it occurs
- Low in gender respect: Women and men treat each other poorly
- Low in support: Sailors do not provide help to one another when personal problems arise

A Sailor is at higher risk of sexual assault, when the Sailor’s coworkers:

- Intentionally interfere with their work performance
- Do not provide information or assistance when they need it
- Take credit for their work or ideas
- Gossip/talk about them
- Use insults, sarcasm or gestures to humiliate them
- Yell when angry at them
